COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

SATURDAY EVENING, 24TH AUGUST, 1878.

If the weather which we have had here to-day continues for the remainder of the month and extends up-country, all fears respecting the majority of the growing crops will be at an end, and the present rise in the prices of grain will be checked. It is true that it is now stated that the Jowaree crop is in most places irretrievably damaged; but even if this is the case no doubt other food-grains can be used in its place. An improved demanded has already set in here for Piece Goods, the enquiry to-day having been better than for the last two or three weeks.

The London telegrams of yesterday quote Consols and French Rentes unchanged at £94¼ and Fcs. 112 respectively. Exchange on India at 60 days' sight is still quoted at 1-7d. Enfaced Rupee Paper has declined ¼ per cent., being now quoted at Rs. 89 for Fours, Rs. 84½ for Fours-and-a half, and Rs. 85 for Fives and-a-half.

The Liverpool Cotton Market closed firm with sales amounting to 10,000 bales, of which 800 bales were Surats; quotations are unchanged.

Yesterday's New York telegrams still quote Mid. Uplands at 12 cents., and Futures at 11⅛ cents. per lb. The receipts at the U. S. ports continue very small, those of this week again only amounting to 5,000 bales; this does not support the reports current a short time ago of a very early crop, as the arrivals at the seaboard are 7,000 bales less during the present month than in 1877, although in excess of those of last year by a like amount. If during the next fortnight a material increase does not take place in the receipts, we may look for a considerable advance in prices in the Liverpool Market, as with a total visible supply of only 1,180,000 bales and the ridiculously small Stock in Liverpool of 565,000 bales an increased demand from the trade would send rates up ¼d. per lb. in a very short time. However, the Manchester Market has been a "broken reed" for such a long time past, that perhaps holders of Cotton would do better by realizing at present rates than by waiting for a demand that never comes, and running the risk of a collapse in Liverpool on account of large arrivals at the American ports.

The visible supply of Cotton for all Europe on the 23rd instant compares as follows with the figures of the two previous years up to the same date:—

	1878.	1877.	1876.
Total supply of all kinds.	1,180,000	1,820,000	1,918,000
Ditto Surats...	333,000	430,000	641,990
For the U. K. alone the figures are:—
Stock in Liverpool.....	565,000	847,000	809,140
Do. London.....	13,000	34,000	41,020
American afloat.....	10,000	30,000	39,000
E. Indian „	120,000	152,000	264,000
Total.....	718,000	1,063,000	1,153,160
	1878.	1877.	1876.
Price of Mid. Orleans...	6 13-16d.	6¼d.	6¼d.
„ Fair Dhollera ...	5¼d.	5 1-16d.	4¼d.
Difference...	1 9-16d.	1 1-16d.	1¾d.

The American crop figures to date, compared with the two previous years, are as follows:—

	1878.	1877.	1876.
Week's Receipts	5,000	3,000	7,300
„ Exports to U. K....	5,000	4,000	12,000
„ „ to Continent..	Nil	Nil.	7,000
Total Receipts since 1st Sept	4,227,000	3,942,000	4,115,000
„ Exports to U. K. „	1,988,000	1,983,000	1,997,000
„ „ to Continent „	1,313,000	1,032,000	1,127,000
„ Stock at the Ports...	50,000	130,000	122,000

Piece Goods in Manchester yesterday were reported firm at previous rates.

In the General Produce Markets in London, Coffee was unchanged: Cochin Cocoanut Oil was again £1 per ton dearer, being quoted at £64 per ton; Ceylon had advanced 5s., being quoted at £45 5s. per ton. Wheat and Linseed were firm, and Rapeseed dull.

Bar Silver was still quoted at 52¾d. to 52¾ per oz. The rate of discount for 3 months' sight Bank Bills is still 4½ per cent. A withdrawal of about £75,000 is reported from the Bank of England for South America.

The total coin in the Bank of France is returned as £86,900,000, and the notes in Circulation £92,900,000.

STERLING EXCHANGE.—Very little has been done here to day as usual on Saturday during the monsoon, and rates are quite unaltered from our yesterday's quotations, viz:—

Bank Bills, on demand	.....1s. 7 31-32d.	per Re.
6 months' sight...	1s. 8 13-32d.	„
Credits, 3 „	„ ...1s. 8 9 32 to 5-16d.	„
Documents, 3 „	„ ...1s. 8 5-16d.	„
Francs 3 „	„ ...2-13

On Calcutta rates are also unchanged at 100 1-16 to 100¼ on demand, and 99¼ at 60 days' sight.

SHARES.—In Bank Shares Nationals continue in demand and have advanced to Rs. 117. The rates for other Banks are unchanged. There has been some enquiry during the day for Press Companies' shares, and an advance of Rs. 30 has taken place in Anglos, Rs. 5 in French, and Rs. 15 in Volkart's United. In Land Companies' Scrip, there has not been much doing, the only change in quotations being a decline of Rs. 5 in Colabas, which are now quoted at Rs. 905. In Spinning and Weaving Companies' shares there are no changes of any importance to notice. In Miscellaneous Companies the share of the Bombay and Burma Trading Company have advanced to Rs. 1 910.

GOVERNMENT PAPER is steady at our yesterday's quotations.

COTTON.—Owing to the continued firmness reported in Liverpool, the demand here continues, but the business transacted has only been on a very small scale owing to the poorness of the quality of the supplies now available.

SEEDS AND WHEAT.—There is no change in the position of Linseed or Rape. Wheat is still firmly held.

PIECE GOODS.—Owing probably to the improvement in the weather, there has been a good demand from dealers during the day, especially for White Goods.

FREIGHTS for Liverpool are unchanged at 17-6 per ton for measurement, and 12-6 per ton for Wheat. For London the steamer Hutton has been fixed at 17s. 6d. per ton and concessions. For the Continent there is no change.

COALS.—There is a good demand, but little business is reported as there is still a considerable margin between buyers' and sellers' ideas.

The Bombay Gazette

MONDAY, AUGUST 26, 1878.

"IT is absurd," said Mr. Lowe, in his speech on the Anglo-Turkish Convention, "to suppose "that anything we can do can reform the "countries of Asia Minor, Syria, Mesopotamia, "and Turkish Arabia. What they want is "money; the people are almost starving; they "are ravaged by brigands and plundered by "Pashas. Those are their grievances; how are "you to remove them? You say that nothing "is easier—you make roads and pay soldiers so "that the people may not be plundered; you "put down the brigands, and, having done that, "you think that if only you add the boon of "railroads all will be well. The Sultan will "admit the necessity of all this, but will protest that he has not a shilling, and the answer "will be 'backsheesh,' as is usual in the East." No prophecy could have been more accurate. The Sultan, in reply to the pressing demands of the British Government for reforms in his administration, has already declared that his heart is set upon making reforms, but that he has no money wherewith to carry them out. The complaint is perfectly just. A highly organized civil administration is, as Indian experience has shown us, the most costly agency that human ingenuity has yet devised for improving the condition of a people; and the Sultan must have nearly exhausted the available financial resources of his subjects during the late disastrous war, while the Treaty of Berlin has not freed him from any of his old debts, but has added to them the sum of forty millions sterling, the amount of the Russian indemnity. It is folly, therefore, to talk of having just provincial governors, independent judges, and an efficient police in Asiatic Turkey; for the existence of such elementary forces of civilisation depends on the supply of plenty of money and the will on the part of the Sultan and his ministers to spend it honestly. But the Asiatic provinces of the Turkish Empire are notoriously wanting in the three things which are essential to the prosperity even of countries naturally fertile, viz., population, capital, and good government. To make its protectorate beneficial, therefore, England must undertake a task the difficulties of which cannot be exaggerated. Lord Salisbury, in a very clever defence of the recent conduct of Lord Beaconsfield's Government, urged that he and his colleagues enjoy the confidence of the country because they are in favour of an extension of the influence and power of England, and that he belongs to the school of foreign policy which is for a great England and not for a small England. That school engages all our sympathies, though we doubt if the real greatness of England can be permanently increased by the annexation of territories in which the white man cannot settle, and over which, therefore, his dominion must in the nature of things be unstable. But, obviously, if for the sake of extending the Empire the British Government chooses to take upon itself the responsibility of "guarding some 3,000 miles of a most "difficult and impracticable country," it should be prepared to pay the cost of such an enterprize. That India can be protected most successfully against invasion by an Asiatic occupation of Western Asia, is an axiom with all respectable military authorities; and we can by no means admit that this occupation would simply saddle the English nation with another such dependency as India, for the Turks might always be relied upon to fight with enthusiasm against Russia, and we know what good soldiers they are and how impossible it would be for a Russian army from the Caucasus to advance towards the Indian frontier with a numerous, well-disciplined, and well-paid Turkish army waiting to assail it in flank. The idea of the Asiatic protectorate has, therefore, always seemed to us a good one; but we greatly fear that the British Government shirks the cost of giving it effect. A heroic idea must be carried out in a heroic spirit, or it becomes mere bombast. But Mr. Cross tells us that the English Cabinet thinks now only of reducing expenditure, and this at a time when, without lavish expenditure, it is evident that their scheme of Imperial aggrandisement must collapse.

The first and main condition of the success of this scheme is that England should herself take in hand the direct administration of Asiatic Turkey. There can be no doubt that an intervention of this kind would be most acceptable to all the inhabitants of Western Asia, to Turks as well as to Jews, Greeks, and Armenians. Lord Salisbury was fairly entitled to boast that the reception given to the English agents who took over Cyprus was very different from that which has greeted either Russians or Austrians in their attempts to seize their shares of the spoil of Turkey. English rule has been welcomed with enthusiasm by all classes of the population of Cyprus, for the simple reason that experience gained of its working in Malta, Gibraltar, and the Ionian Islands, has proved it to be mild and just, and that under its sway trade and industry flourish and the people are protected against capricious exactions and cruel oppression. Lord Sandon, who appears to know Syria well, says that the general cry, when he travelled in that country, was, "when are you "coming to help us?"—but he forgot to add that the persons against whom the help of England was prayed for were the infamous agents of the Turkish Government. The Syrians and Mesopotamians know and care nothing about Russia, but they would joyfully exchange the Turkish pashas and judges who buy offices at Constantinople and get their pay by plundering the country for honest and honourable English administrators. If, however, as seems probable, England means to content herself with Cyprus, and to leave all the mainland of Asiatic Turkey to be still governed by agents of the Porte, then the pretence of benefiting the Sultan's subjects in Western Asia must be abandoned. It is impossible to believe in the sincerity of Lord Salisbury, at least among the Ministers, when he speaks of the ability or inclination of the Sultan to effect reforms except under foreign control. From the time of the Constantinople Conference till very lately, Lord Salisbury has always maintained that the Turk is played out; and this doctrine alone can be pleaded in justification of the conduct of English Ministers in letting European Turkey be dismembered. If, however, the Pashas of Constantinople cannot be trusted to govern well in Europe, it is notorious that their rule is equally worthless in Asia. The Treaty of Berlin has left them with their frontier fortresses in the hands of the Russians, and their own dominions in a state of anarchy. To make her protectorate real, then, England should do as France did after losing Alsace and Lorraine, build a new military line of defence in Armenia and the valley of the Tigris, and behind it re-organize the resources of the country. This work, vigorously undertaken, would change the face of Asiatic Turkey in the course of the next thirty years; but it would cost many millions of English money, which the English Government dares not ask Parliament to give.

The Ministry appears to cling to the hope that the mere magic of the name of England will avail to re-populate regions which have been laid waste by centuries of Turkish rule, and to attract the capital needed to revive the prosperity of countries which were once the most fruitful of the earth. Lord Sandon, with unaccustomed eloquence, spoke of the "novel enterprise" of the Government as "one cal-"culated to call forth great and generous enthu-"siasm." "They hoped," he said, "to bring "to those regions the blessings of commerce, "to give them the railway, the steam plough, "and those manufactures and arts by which "England had been so greatly benefited. They "hoped to bring them, but not alone. They "would invite Italy, and Germany, and France, "with her noble representative, M. de Lesseps, "to join them." But these countries will undoubtedly refuse the generous invitation of England to help her in giving peace and prosperity to countries over which she claims an exclusive protectorate. They will reply—No; do your own work at your own expense. Will English capitalists view the situation more favourably, and, forgetting their usual prudence, and animated only by a spirit of patriotism, cast their money-bags at the feet of the Government, and entreat that their gold may be freely used in the furtherance of Lord Sandon's noble enterprise? The answer is, that even in India, which is strongly and securely guarded by an English army, which has an immence revenue collected regularly and without difficulty, and which enjoys excellent credit in the principal European money-markets, English capital is exceedingly shy of seeking investment in public works on which a fixed rate of interest is not guaranteed by the State. What prospect, then, is there that English capital will rush to seek fresh fields for employment in Mesopotamia, Asia Minor, or other distracted provinces of the impoverished and bankrupt Turkish Empire? Why should any Englishman be so mad as to risk the loss of his money in a country in which the Government cannot maintain peace or order, and which lies at all times exposed to the imminent risk of foreign conquests? Not a mile of railway will ever be built, not a canal re-opened, or a manufacturing industry started in Asiatic Turkey, except under the security of a guaranteed rate of interest, and this guarantee must be given by the British Goverament, or the capitalist will stand aloof. Mr. Laing, who speaks with authority on such questions, says that the Russian indemnity must "destroy the future "credit of Turkey and intensely embarrass her "finances, as she could now make no special "hypothecations of any branch of revenue." It is obvious, therefore, that the Pashas have now lost the privilege of being able to borrow European capital. This is in some respects a good thing for themselves and the country. The example of Egypt shows what must be the result of allowing an Oriental Government to raise loans freely in London and Paris to improve its dominions. Egypt has got all the blessings of civilisation which Lord Sandon enumerates—railways, canals, factories, steam ploughs, a brisk and thriving commence. Yet the people of the country are reduced to a state of misery more abject than even their fathers knew; the Khedive's treasury is empty; and the only persons who benefit by the changed condition of the country are speculators and brokers of the class that may be described as the financial scum of Europe. It is possibly a fortunate thing for Asiatic Turkey that its resources are not to be developed in this way. No money will be lent to the Sultan henceforth unless the British Government guarantees the interest and the repayment of the capital; and, as the British Government is not inclined to take upon itself this responsibility, Asiatic Turkey will probably be left to its fate.

POONA LETTER.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

POONA, AUG 25.

NOTHING is known here of the proposed visit of the Governor to Rajkote next week, which is mentioned by your Kattywar correspondent; and I am assured that Sir Richard Temple has no present intention of going away from Poona. His movements are, however, very uncertain, and I believe his own staff very often only get a few hours' notice to start on a journey to some distant part of the Presidency. His Excellency's time must be a good deal occupied just now with the affairs of your city. Colonel Baker has been up here again about the foreshore question, and I suppose the Government will now make up its mind to buy the properties. The Secretary of State seems to have been anxious only to buy off the competition of the foreshore companies by giving them so many votes on a Port Trust which should manage their estates and that of Government as one property, and distribute the profits rateably. But the foreshore owners have unanimously rejected this offer, which has also been condemned as impracticable by the Chamber of Commerce. I believe, too, that Bombay merchants have strongly urged on Government the expediency of settling this question before the cotton season begins, as they do not at all like the prospect of being compelled to go all the way to Mazagon again for their cotton, which they would have to do if the Mazagon property were left in the hands of Mr. Kessowjee Naik. So, although Mr. Kessowjee won't get the 22 lakhs he has asked for, I fancy he will get some advance on the original offer made to him. The Sassoons have already accepted the offer of 20 lakhs made to them; and I hear the Colaba Company will have the whole of their land taken over as well as the foreshore rights for 16 lakhs. It will be a good thing for Bombay when this business is finally disposed of.
